This may justly be described as one of the most startling and puzzling events in the parliamentary history of England.

The bill, as Mr. Morley said in his powerful and interesting speech, is a social revolution. It aims at nothing less than the transferrence of agricultural Ireland from the rent-receiving landlord to the rent-pay-

SPECIAL BY CABLE TO THE NEW YORK HERALD AND THE ST. LOUIS REPUBLIC. London, May 9.—(Copyright, 1903.)—A curious application, involving a strange ro-

Lord Sackville, who is now in his seventy-sixth year, it seems, on a visit to Paris in 1852, made the acquaintance of a Spanish dancer, Josephine Duvand de Ortega, whose stage name was Pepita de Oliva.

The plaintiff's case is that Lord Sackville married her and had six children born by her to him, namely, Max, in 1858; Victoria, 1862; Eliza, 1863; Flora, 1866; Henri, who is the present plaintiff, 1859; another who died soon after birth, in 1871.

From both Debrett's and Burke's peerages, however, it would appear that Lord Sackville has never been married at all. His heir is his brother, the Honorable William Edward Sackville-West, who, with his heirs, are defendants in the action and who maintain that the present plaintiff is not the legitimate son of the present Peer and that they are the only legitimate successors to the title and estates of Lord cessors to the title and estates of Lord Backville.

M. TIMELY COUNTERPOISE.

This visit of the King of England comes Just in time to serve as pendant and counterpoise to the visit of Emperor William to Rome. Emperor William, who is very popular in Italy, has, however, wpunded a little Italian national feeling by exaggerating the pomp of his visit to the Pope The German monks of Monte Cassino had the chance to cry out "Vive Charlemagne" on his stopping there, and to give his pride the caress which their own pride received. But the shopkeepers of Rome, who are voters, thought it wrong of him to bring with him a cavalry escort, and not to be satisfied on Italian soil with Italian soldiers.

Outside of these displays our political life is dragging along in recrimination and re-bukes. Almost everywhere the monks are appearing before the courts for having re-fused to dissolve their congregations or for having tried to reconstruct them.

Whether in the provinces or in Paris, they all make the answer that they have no been dissolved by any law. been dissolved by any law.

SPEXIAL BY CABLE TO THE NEW YORK HERALD AND THE ST. LOUIS REPUBLIC. London, May 9.-(Copyright, 1903.)-Mr. Andrew Carnegie's eulogium of the profit sharing system, as applied to big indus trial works, is regarded in England as the most important social manifesto ever draft-
